A GCU Official Facebook page for students to buy and sell course books

I and a lecturer were discussing textbooks and we realised the only good places to buy were usually Amazon or Facebook marketplaces. We think it would be a good idea to have a GCU official Facebook page that allowed students to sell and buy core textbooks. It could help build connections, give both sellers and buyers better prices and profits, and could be reassuring for students to buy books of each other than someone unknown.

I know GCU has a bookshop on campus but sometimes books are so expensive so this may be a good addition for some students and I don't think it would require much upkeep once the page was made

To encourage health and mental well being - can we map out a mile walk around our Glasgow Campus? it would also be a good way for students to meet other students from other schools as we dont seem too good at interacting at times!!

Move all lockers to library so they can be accessed by students who spend their weekends studying in the library

In previous discussions with the care-experienced officer, it is my understanding that these two representation areas can often go hand-in-hand and it would mean that the students who identify as estranged can also be represented. Following a meeting with the corporate parent steering group, it is my understanding that we do have estranged students at GCU - even though it may be a small cohort, it means they can be included in our representation structure at GCU Students Association. :)

It would be a good idea to have an easily accessible basic first-aid kits and medications on campus and student accommodation.

Prices in the canteen are ridiculously high. Would suggest better food for the price or bring down the prices. Quick groceries for students like bread milk fruits. Helps those who make there own meals. Sometimes the couple of meals are like those that have chicken are undercooked.
