

KELVIN ALANEME FOR GCU LONDON OFFICER

WHY KELVIN?

I have a burning desire to offer effective representation, make our voice heard and contribute to policies that will be beneficial to GCU students in London.

WHO IS KELVIN?

I am a Nigerian-born medical doctor, writer and public health advocate with over a decade experience in leadership and Public service. I have been the Vice President of the Association of Residents Doctors as well as a current member of the National Committee on External Linkages of the Nigerian Medical Association. I am currently doing my Masters of Public Health at GCU London.

KELVIN'S SIX PLEDGES

1. To offer GCU London students a vibrant representation by ensuring that all student policies and decisions taken in this institution reflects our collective views and desires.
2. To create 'Monthly Fundays' that will bring the various disciplines together. The 'Fundays' holding on the last Saturday of every month will feature Movies, Music, Fashion and Display by GCU London students.
3. To be accessible and attentive to the needs of every GCU London student. I will be a phonecall away from getting to know your problem and sourcing for solutions.
4. To interface with the Course Reps of various programs regularly and note key problems peculiar to students in that particular course and find solutions to them.
5. To seek for and make public industry opportunities that will benefit GCU London students, be it internship in a reputable fashion house or positions in corporate organisations.
6. To give us Social Media visibility and share our story with the world. This involves capturing our activities on Social Media and drawing the attention of leading voices in the corporate world to GCU London as a hub of fresh, stimulating talents.

I have a strong bias for action and will do my best in delivering on these pledges if you vote me in as your London Officer.
