It would be helpful for not only vegans, but also people with dairy intolerances. A simple "(VE)" symbol would be very appreciated.

Apps anywhere to be anywhere

To make AppsAnywhere available anywhere (to all) rather than just the limited amount when off campus. As many students travel into GCU to use computers, surely being able to do work at home or other locations would be more suitable, whether that's on the train or on their lunch hour. All apps available on campus should be accessible, as title suggests, anywhere.

Having a microwave for people to warm their food up

A lot of people that bring food in for themselves struggle and are forced to eat their food cold as there are no microwave on campus for anyone to use. In addition, other universities already are providing microwaves on campus for students to use whereas GCU isn't. This especially gets hard for people that may be needing to eat Halal food as there isn't many options on the university campus for halal food/chicken.

The Saltire Centre to have lockers

As a student who travels from home to university I am constantly layering up and carrying a lot of things for my day. However, I do not always need books all at once but bring them to be able to study with in the library after class. Lockers in the library would enable people to keep unnecessary items such as scarves etc but also a range of books used for studying. Moreover, especially when studying in the library by myself I feel unwilling to leave any valuables at a desk (such as my laptop) to go get something to eat or if I'm gone for a while. With lockers you would be able to keep your valuables safe whilst not losing your place in the library floor, especially at this time of year when it can be hectic. Edinburgh university already has lockers in both the 1st and 5th floor of their library. They have academic lockers for the year which you can rent and 'daytime lockers' for everyday use. Although Glasgow Caledonian University has lockers these are not currently located in the library and also are limited on first come basis. More daytime lockers will enable short use for everyone who is just needing somewhere to keep their things whilst studying alone, and by placing these in the saltire centre this will enable students to study for longer.
